THE GLOBE:

THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF CONGRESS.

I PUBLISH now my annual Prospectus of THE DAILY GLOBE and THE CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE AND APPENDIX, to remind subscribers, and inform those who may desire to subscribe, that Congress will meet on the first Monday of next December, when I shall resume publishing the above named papers. They have been published so long, that most public men know their character, and therefore I deem it needless to give a minute account of the kind of matter they will contain.

THE DAILY GLOBE will contain a report of the Debates in both branches of Congress as taken down by reporters, equal, at least, to any corps of short-hand writers in this, or in any other country. A majority of them will each, be able to report, verbatim, ten thousand words an hour, while the average number of words spoken by fluent speakers rarely exceeds seven thousand five hundred words an hour. When the debates of a day do not make more than forty-five columns, they will appear in The Daily Globe of the next morning which will contain, also, the news of the day, together with such editorial articles as may be suggested by passing events.

THE CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE AND APPENDIX will contain a report of all the Debates in Congress, revised by the speakers, the Messages of the President of the United States, the Annual Reports of the Head of the Executive Departments, the Laws passed during the session, and copious indexes to all. They will be printed on a double royal sheet, in book form, royal quarto size, each number containing sixteen pages. The whole will make, it is believed, at least 2,000 pages. This is acknowledged to be the cheapest work ever sold in any country, whether a reprint or printed from manuscript copy, taking for data the average number of words it contains.

The coming session will, without doubt, be an unusually interesting one, because the debates will, in a great measure, be upon the policy of the President elect, and The Globe will be, as it has been for many years past, the only source from which full debates of Congress can be obtained.

THE CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE AND APPENDIX pass free through the mails of the United States, as will be seen by reading the following Joint Resolution passed by Congress the 6th of August, 1852:—

Joint Resolution providing for the distribution of the Laws of Congress and the Debates thereon.

With a view to the cheap circulation of the laws of Congress and the debates contributing to the true interpretation thereof, and to make free the communication between the representative and constituent bodies:—

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the present session of Congress, the CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE AND APPENDIX, which contain the laws and the debates thereon, shall pass free through the mails so long as the same shall be published by order of Congress: Provided, That nothing herein shall be construed to authorize the circulation of the DAILY GLOBE free of postage.

Approved August 6, 1852.

TERMS:

For a copy of THE DAILY GLOBE, for four months,	$3 00
For 1 copy of THE CONGRESSIONAL GLOBE AND APPENDIX, during the session,	3 00
For 2 copies ditto, when ordered at the same time,	5 00

No attention will be paid to any order unless the money accompany it.

Bank notes current in the section of the country where a subscriber resides, will be received at par. The whole or any part of a subscription may be remitted in postage stamps, which is preferable to any currency, except gold or silver.

This book makes the Bible a pleasant as well as profound subject of study. It leaves no difficult or obscure point unexplained. It renders every passage clear. It is exactly the volume that every family, which reads at all imperatively needs to place beside the Bible, as its best companion.

THIS VOLUME ANSWERS 1,493 QUESTIONS IN A CLEAR MANNER.

TESTIMONIALS OF THE CLERGY.

"I have given some attention to the 'Biblical Reason Why,' and feel bound to say that it seems to me to contain a vast amount of information on Biblical subjects, conveyed in a clear manner, illustrated by many valuable cuts, and printed on good paper. It constitutes a valuable addition to the apparatus of the Teacher, Parent, and private Christian."

Bishop of Pennsylvania.

"I have examined the 'Biblical Reason Why,' and find it to be a repertory of facts on Biblical subjects, set forth in a plain and intelligible way. Indeed, I am surprised at the amount of matter that is compressed into this volume for use in families and schools. I consider it the best book of the kind I have seen."

Rev. JOHN McCLINTOCK, D. D., LL. D.,
President of the Troy University, and Pastor of St. Paul's Church (Methodist Episcopal,) New York.

"The attention I have given your book satisfies me that it cannot fail to give important aid to all students of the Bible, and especially that large class who have neither time nor means to bestow on larger or more critical works. The plan of your work is excellent, and the matter well chosen. It should have a large circulation. It will certainly be of great use in the study of the Holy Scriptures."

Rev. JOSEPH H. KENNARD,
Pastor of the Eighth street Baptist Church, Philadelphia.

A MODEL WORSHIPPER.

"Tell me about the sermon, dear;
Take off your shawl and hat,
And come and sit beside me here;
The text first—wehn was that?"

"Well, really, Aunty, I don't know,
I have forgotten quite;
I wish you could see Jane Monroe,
She dresses like a fright!

"Miss Lyman wore a splendid shawl,
With that old horrid bonnet,
The very one she wore last fall,
And that old trimming on it.

"But Mrs. Deacon Jones had on
One of the richest collars
I ever saw, and her new dress
Must have cost fifty dollars.

Strange what extravagance and waste
Some people always show!
Then Hattie Bell, what want of taste
She dresses with you know."

"The audience you remember, dear,
If you do not the sermon,
Which preacher do you like to hear,
This one, or Mr. Herman?"

"Oh, I like Mr. Herman, for
He's handsome, aunt, you know;
Then he's so graceful, and his teeth
How splendidly they show?"

An Interesting Sketch.

ARTEMUS WARD VISITS BRIGHAM YOUNG.

It is now goin on 2 (two) yeres, as I very well remember, since I crossed the Planes for Kaliforny, the Brite land of Jold. While crossin the Planes all so bold I fell with sum noble red men of the forest, (N. B. This is rote Sarcasticul. Injuns is Pizen, whar ever found,) which they Sed I was their Brother, & wanted for to smoke the Calomel of Peace with me. Then they stole my jerk of beef, blankits, etsettery, skalpt my orgin grinder & Sooted with a Wild Hoop. Durin the Cheaf's teachin speech he sed he should meet me in the Happy Huntin Grounds. If he duz thar will be a fite. But enuff of this ere Revere Noose Muttons, as our skoolmaster, who has got Talent intô him, cussyeally observes.

I arrove at Salt Lake in doo time. At Camp Scott thare was a lot of U. S. sojers, hosstensibly sent out there to jine the Mormons but really to eat salt vittles and play poker & other sumwhat butiful but onsartin games. I got acquainted with sum of the officers. They look putty scrumshus in their Bloo coats with buttings onto um & ware very talented drinkers, but so far as fittin is consarned Ide willingly put my wax figgers agin the hull party.

My desire was to exhibit my grate show at Salt Lake City, so I called on Brigham Young, the grate mogul amung the mormins axed his permishun to pitch my tent and onful my banner to the jentle breezis. He looked at me in a austeer manner fur a few minits & sed,

"Du you bleeve in Solomon, Saint Paul, the immaculateness of the Mormin Church, and the Latter day Revelashuns?"

Sez I, "Ime on it!" I make it a pint to git along plesunt, tho I didn't know under the son what the old feller was driven at. He sed I mite show.

"You air a marrid man Mister Young, I bleeve?" sez I, preparin to write him sum free parsis.

"I hev eighty wives, Mister Ward, I sertinly am marrid."

"How du you like it as fur as you hev got?" sez I.

He sed "middlin," and axed me wouldn't I like to see his famerly, to which I replide that I wouldn't mind minglin with the fair seck & barskin in the winnin smiles of his interestin wives.

He accordingly tuk me to his Scareum.—The house is powerful big & in a exceeding large room was his wives and children, which last was skuakwin and hollerin enuff to take the roof rite orf the house. The wimin was of all sizes and ages. Sum was pretty & sum was plane—sum was healthy and sum on the Wayne, which is verses, the sich was not my intenshuns, as I don't prove of spottin verses in Prose ritins, tho of ocashunn requires I ken Jerk a Poim ekwal to eny of them Atlantic Monthly fellers.

"My wives, Mister Ward," Sed Yung.

"Your sarvant, marms," sed I, as I sot down in a cheer which a red-heded female brawt me.

"Besides these wives you see here, Mister Ward," sed Yung, "I hev eighty more in varis parts of this consecrated land which air Sealed to me."

"Which?" sez I gittin up & starein at him.

"Sealed, Sir, sealed."

"Whare bowts?" sez I.

"I sed, Sir, that they was sealed!" He spoke in a traggerdy voice.

"Will they probly continue in that stile to any grate extend, Sir?" I axed.

"Sir," said he, turnin as red as a biled beet, "don't you know that the rules of our Church is, that I, the Profit, may hev as meny wives as I wants?"

"Jes so," I sed. "You are old pie, ain't you?"

"Them as is sealed to me—that is to say, to be mine, when I wants um—are at present my speratooal wives," sed Mr. Yung.

"Long may they wave," sez I secin I shood git into a scrape of I didn't look out.

In a private convershun with Brigham I lernt the follerin fax: It takes him six weeks to kiss his wives. He don't du it only once a yere & sez it is wus nor cleanin house. He don't pretend to know his children, thar is so meny on em, they all know him. He says about every child he meets calls him par, an he takes it fur grandtid it's so. His wives air expensiv. They allers want suthin, an ef he don't buy it fur um they set the house in a uproar. He sez he doant hev a minits pece. His wives fite among theirselves so much that he has bilt a fitein room fur their speshul benefit and when 2 on um gits into a row he turns um loos in that place, where the dispoot is settled accordin to the rules of the Lundun prize ring. Sumtimes they abooz hisself indiwidooally. They hev puild the most of his hare out at the rutes & he wares meny a horribel scar upon his body, inflicted with mop handles, broom sticks & sich.

Occashunly they git mad an sald him with bilin hot water. When he got any waze cranky they'd shut him up in a dark closit, previsely whippin him arter the stile of muthods when thare orsprings git onraly. Sumtimes when he went in swimmin theyed go to the banks of the Lake and steal all his close, thereby compellin him to sneek home by a scircootius rowt, dresst in the Skanderlus stile of the Greek Slaiv. "I find that the keers of marrid life way hevy onto me," sed the Profit, "& sumtimes I wish Ide remained single." I left the Profit and started for the tavern whar I put up to. On my way I was overtuk by a large crowd of Mormins, when they surrounded me an statid they was goin into the show free.

"Wall," sez I, "ef I find a individooal who is goin round lettin folks into his show free, Ide let you know."

"We've had a Revelashun biddin us go into A. Ward's Show without payin nothin!" they showtid.

"Yes," hollered a lot of female Mormonesses, ceasing me by the cote tales & swingin me round very rapid, "we're all goin in free! So sez the Revelashun!"

"Wat's Old Revelashun got to do with my Show?" sez I, gettin putty riled. "Tell Mister Revelashun," sed I gittin putty riled.—"Tell Mister Revelashun," sed I, drawin myself up to my full hite an lookin round upon the ornery krowd with a proud & defiant mean, "tell Mister Revelashun to mind his own bizness, subjeck only to the Konstitushun of the United States!"

"Oh now let us in, that's a swete man" sed several femails, puttin thare arms round me in a lovin style. "Become 1 of us. Becum a Preest, and hev wives Sealed to you."

"Not a Seal!" sez I, startin back in horror at the idee.

"Oh stay, sir," sed a tall gawnt femail, ore whose hed 37 summers must hev parsed, "stay & Ile be yure Jentle Gazelle."

"Not ef I know it, you won't," sez I.—"Awa you skanderlus femails, awa! Go & be a Nunnery!" That's what I sed, jes so.

"&," sed a fat chunky femail, who must hev wade more than too hundred lbs, "I will be yure swete gidin star!"

"Sez I, "Ile bet too dollars an a half you wont!" Whore ear I ma Rome Ide still be troo 2 thee, oh Betsey Jane! [N. B.—Betsey Jane is my wife's Sir name.]

"Wiltist thou not tary hear in the Promist Land?" sed several of the miserabil critters.

"Ile see you all essenshally cussed bef I wiltist!" rored I, as mad as eood be at thare infernul noncents. I girded up my Lions & fled the Seen. I packt up my duds and left Salt Lake, which is a grand Soddam & Germorrer, inhabited by as theavin & onprincipuld a set of retches as ever drew Breth in eny spot on the Globe.

ARTEMUS WARD.

Miscellaneous.

IS IT CHEAPER?

Is it cheaper to build jails than it is to educate your children in good morals; and thus prevent their becoming inmates of our prisons?

What sort of men will those boys make who are allowed to frequent rum holes, to smoke, swear, and play cards?

Do parents suppose they can hold the reins of government over their sons, while they permit them to spend their evenings away from home, subjected to all the evil influences which are always concentrated in a village?

Is it cheaper for a father to pay for the mischief which his sons do, than it is to buy them a library of books? If parents would keep their sons contented at home, let them take good newspapers so as to furnish them with mental and moral food.

Is it not cheaper to furnish good books, good papers, and plenty of them, for our children, than it is to let them go without, and run the risk of their contracting a taste for immorality, tobacco and strong drinks?

The daughters, too, should not be neglected. Take papers and magazines for them, give them something to think about and then they will not grow up silly, weak-minded women, who take no interest in anything but fashions, dress and flirtations.

PRECOCITY.

Ballet mentions one hundred and sixty-three children endowed with extraordinary talents, among whom few arrived at an advanced age. The two sons of Quintillian so vaunted by their father, did not reach their tenth year. Hermogenes, who at the age of fifteen, taught rhetoric to Marcus Aurelius, who triumphed over the most celebrated rhetoricians of Greece, did not die, but at twenty-four lost his faculties, and forgot all he had previously acquired. Pica di Mirandola died at thirty-two; Johannes Secundus at twenty-five, having at the age of fifteen composed admirable Greek and Latin verses, and become profoundly versed in jurisprudence and letters. Pascal, whose genius developed itself at ten years old, did not attain the third of a century. In 1791 a child was born at Lubeck, named Henri Heinneken, whose precocity was miraculous. At ten months he spoke distinctly, at twelve learned the Pentateuch by rote, and at fourteen months was perfectly acquainted with the Old and New Testaments. At two years he was as familiar with ancient history as the most erudite authors of antiquity. Sausson and Danville only could compete with him in geographical knowledge. In the ancient and modern languages he was proficient. This wonderful child was unfortunately carried off in his fourth year.

HOW THE LION WOOS HIS BRIDE.

Let us first sketch the story of a lion's life—beginning with his marriage, which takes place towards the end of January. He was first to seek his wife; but as the males are far more abundant than the females, who are often cut off in infancy, it is not rare to find a young lady pestered with the addresses of three or four gallants, who quarrel with the acerbity of jealous lovers. If one of them does not succeed in disabling or driving away the others, madam, impatient and dissatisfied, leads them into the presence of an old lion whose roar she has appreciated at a distance. The lovers fly to him with the temerity of youth and exasperation. The old fellow receives them with calm assurance, breaks the neck of the first with his terrible jaws, smashes the leg of the second, and tears out the eye of the third. No sooner is the day won and the field clear, than the lion tosses his mane in the air as he roars, and then crouches by the side of his lady, who, as a reward for his courage, licks his wounds caressingly.

When two adult lions are the rivals, the encounter is more serious. An Arab perched in a tree one night, saw a lioness followed by a tawny lion, with full-grown mane; she lay down at the foot of the tree—the lion stopped on his path and seemed to listen. The Arab then heard the distant growling of a lion, which was instantly replied to by the lioness under the tree. This made her husband roar furiously. The distant lion was heard approaching, and as he came nearer the lioness roared louder, which seemed to agitate her husband, for he marched toward her as if to force her to be quiet, and then sprang back to his old post, roaring defiance at his distant rival. This continued for about an hour, when a black lion made his appearance on the plain. The lioness arose as if to go towards him; but her husband, guessing her intention, bounded towards his rival. The two crouched and sprang upon each other, rolling on the grass in the embrace of death. Their bones cracked, their flesh was torn, their cries of rage and agony rent the air, and all this time the lioness crouched and wagged her tail slowly in signs of satisfaction. When the combat ended, and both warriors were stretched on the plain, she arose, smelt them, satisfied herself that they were dead, and trotted off, quite regardless of the uncomplimentary epithet.

This, Gerard tells us, is an example of the conjugal fidelity of milady; whereas the lion never quits his wife unless forced, and is quite a pattern of conjugal attention.—Westminster Review.

PERSONAL LIBERTY LAWS.

Laws of this nature, intended to interfere with the proper enforcement of the Fugitive Slave Law, have been passed by the legislatures of several of the Northern States. They should never have been passed, and they should, in good faith to the Constitution of the United States and the Laws of Congress, as well as in justice to the South, be repealed. We say this without reference to the present rebellious position of the South—which, in our judgment, is without justification—on the ground that the acts themselves are wrong, and therefore should not be permitted to remain on the statute books. An act of this character—not exactly a personal liberty bill, but nearly as objectionable—was passed by our own Legislature in 1847, which we trust the next legislature will wipe out. The South have a constitutional right to reclaim, without hindrance on our part, the slaves who escape from them and come into this State. They are fugitives from labor—their masters have a right to their services, and no good citizen would encourage or harbor them; nor would any legislative body, mindful of the oath they take to "support the Constitution of the United States," throw legal obstacles in the way of their recovery. Such laws, we cannot but think, are all the offspring of excitement, and we will not permit ourselves to doubt that the error committed by the legislature of this State in 1847, will be corrected by the legislature of 1861. Let us, as far as we have it in our power, take from the South all reasonable grounds or dissatisfaction; and then, if still yielding to the impulse of passion, or conjuring up imaginary grievances either present or prospective, she persists in her unpatriotic course, and precipitates revolution, we shall feel free from blame, and be better prepared to meet the dreadful issue with sternness, and determination. All grievances removed, let the choice rest with them whether they will be friends and at peace, or enemies, and at war with us.—Harrisburg State Sentinel.

THE UBIQUITY OF PATENTS.

The Scientific American, in noticing a new patent bier, for lowering coffins into graves, indulges in the following strain in reference to patents:—"The life of this stage most assuredly moves on patent inventions. For instance. The infant is wrapped in linen woven on a patent frame, and he draws his first drop of nourishment from his mother's breast through a patent nipple shield. The girl fondles a doll, the boy whirls a patent top, or plays with a ball which is made under one of the most valuable patents of the age. In later life we put on a French yoke shirt, which with the rest of our clothes, is sewed on a patent machine, with a patent thread, with a patent needle, which comes enveloped in a patent wrapper; and our very boots are made of patent leather. We rise in the morning from a patent eliptic spring bed, undo the patent fastenings of our windows, roll up our patent curtains, open the patent locks of our doors, which were constructed by patent machinery, and go down to our coffee, which is made in a patent old "Dominion" coffee pot. We write with one of Morton's patent pens, which we dip into our patent ink-stand. Thus surrounded by patents; we pass our life, which is filled with gorgeous dreams of making a splendid fortune by some patent invention of our own, till we are placed in a patent burial case, and lowered from a patent bier into our final place of rest."

JAKE WILLARD AND THE BLIND HORSE.

For twenty-three years, old Jake Willard has cultivated the soil of Baldwin county, and drawn therefrom a support for self and wife. He is childless. Not long ago Jake left the house in search of a missing cow. His route led him through an old worn-out patch of clay land, of about six acres in extent, in the center of which was a well, twenty-five or thirty feet deep, that at some time probably, had furnished the inmates of a dilapidated house near by with water. In passing by this spot, an ill wind lifted Jake's "tile" from his head, and maliciously wafted it to the edge of the well, and in it tumbled.

Now Jake had always practised the virtue of economy, and he immediately set about recovering the lost hat. He ran to the well, and finding it was dry at the bottom, he uncoiled the rope which he had brought for the purpose of capturing the truant cow, and after several attempts to catch the hat with a noose, he concluded to save time by going down into the well himself. To accomplish this, he made fast one end of the rope to a stump hard by, and was quickly on his way down the well.

It is a fact of which Jake was no less oblivious than the reader hereof, that Ned Wells was in the old dilapidated building aforesaid, and that an old blind horse with a bell on his neck, who had been turned out to die, was lazily grazing within a short distance of the well.

The devil, himself, or some other wicked spirit put it into Ned's cranium to have a little fun, so he quietly slipped up to the horse, and unbuckled the bell strap, approached with slow measured "ting-a-ling" the edge of the well.

"G—d dang that old blind horse!" said Jake, "he's a-coming this way sure, and ain't got no more sense than to fall in here. Whoa, Ball.

"But the continued approach of the ting-a-ling, said just as plain as words that Ball wouldn't whoa. Beside Jake was at the bottom, resting, before trying to 'shin' it up the rope.

"Great Jerusalem!" said he, "the old cuss will be a-top of me before I can say Jack Robinson. "Whoa, G—d dang you, whoa."

Just then, Ned drew up to the edge of the well, and with his foot kicked a little dirt into it.

"Oh, Lord," exclaimed Jake, falling upon his knees at the bottom, "I'm gone now, whoa. Now I lay me down to sleep—whoa Ball. I pray the Lord my soul to—wh-o-a now. Oh! Lord have mercy on me,

Ned could hold in no longer, and fearful Jake might suffer from his fright, revealed himself.

Probably Ned didn't make tracks with his heels from that well. Maybe Jake wasn't up to the top of it in short order, and you might think he didn't try every night for two weeks to get a shot with his rifle. Maybe not. I don't know. But I do know that if Jake finds out who sent you this, it will be the last squib you'll get.

CAT MANIA.

A cat mania is a singular thing; yet it existed in Mrs. Griggs, of Southampton Row, London, who died on the 16th of January, 1792. Her executors found in her house eighty-six living, and twenty-eight dead cats! Their owner, who died worth $150,000, left her black servant $750 per annum for the maintenance of the surviving cats and himself. Pope records an instance of a famous Duchess of R——, who bequeathed considerable legacies and annuities to her cats. In the Mercure Galante there may be found a record of a famous lawsuit, relating to a cat of Madame de Puis, a celebrated performer on the harp. This lady's will, in favor of the cat made a great noise at the time. It settled a large pension upon her, and directed that so many visits should be paid her every week. In the suit carried on to set the will aside, MM. Weaurier and Vautier, celebrated lawyers, were engaged to sustain it, while M. de Ferriers, equally famous, was retained on the opposite interest. But if, of the gentler sex, there are those "who cradle the blind offspring of their Selimas, and adorn the pensive mother's neck with coral beads," some also of the remarkable among our sterner race have shown an extraordinary fondness for these luxurious quadrupeds. Mohammed, for instance, had a cat to which he was so much attached that he preferred cutting off the sleeve of his garment to disturbing her repose, when she had fallen asleep upon it. Petrarch was so fond of the cat that he had it embalmed after death and placed in a niche in his apartment. Dr. Johnson had a feline favorite, and when it was ill, declining its usual food, but greedily seizing an oyster when it was offered, he was accustomed to bring home for her daily some of these tempting molluses. Mr. Peter King, who died at Islington in 1806, had two Tom cats, that used to set up at table with him at his meals, and, as he was a great admirer of fine clothes, richly laced, he thought his cats might like them too. The grimalkins were accordingly measured, and wore rich liveries until death.

FEMALE INFLUENCE and ENERGY.

I have noticed that a married man falling into misfortune is more apt to retrieve his situation in the world than a single one, chiefly because his spirits are soothed and relieved by domestic endearments, and self-respect, kept alive by finding that, although abroad may be darkness and humiliation yet there is still a little world of love at home, of which he is monarch. Whereas, a single man is apt to run to waste and self-neglect; to fall to ruin like some deserted mansion for want of inhabitants. I have often had occasion to remark the fortitude with which women sustain the most overwhelming reverse of fortune, Those disasters which break down the spirit of man, and prostrate him in the dust, seem to call forth all the energies of the other sex, and give such intrepidity and elevation to their character that at times it approaches to sublimity. Nothing can be more touching than to behold a soft and tender female, who had been all weakness and dependence, and alive to every trivial roughness, while treading the prosperous path, suddenly rising in mental force to be the comforter and supporter of her husband under misfortunes, abiding with unshrinking firmness the bitterest blasts of adversity.

As the vine which has long twined its graceful foliage about the oak, and has been lifted by his sunshine, will, when the hardy plant is rifted by the thunderbolt, cling around it with its caressing tendrils, and bind up its shattered brow, so, too, it is beautifully ordained by Providence, that woman, who is the ornament and dependent of man in his happier hours, should be his stay and solace when smitten with dire and sudden calamity, winding herself into the rugged recesses of his nature, tenderly supporting his drooping head, and binding up the broken heart.—Washington Irving.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE—The message, if received in time, will accompany this week's Globe in an extra. If not received in time it will be mailed to our subscribers tomorrow.

The News.

— Sufficient returns are received to show that Mr. Douglas has received in the free States alone more than thirteen hundred thousand votes. He has got one hundred thousand more votes than Buchanan received in 1856, despite the combined opposition of Mr. Buchanan and the Republicans.

He has about as strong a vote in the free States as Fremont had in 1856.

He has more votes in the free States than there were votes polled for all candidates combined in the Slave States. This is a fact well worthy the attention of the people of the South.

— Our exchanges from all sections of the Union, come to us filled with failures, suspensions and a general break-up in the financial, commercial and industrial affairs of the nation. This is truly a deplorable state of affairs; but we do not deem it the part of wisdom longer to withhold the true state of the case from the people. And all this is the work of reckless political demagogues North and South.

— A number of citizens of Maryland having applied to Governor Hicks, of that State, to call together the State Legislature, to consider the disunion question, he replies by refusing the request. The Governor is willing to go as far as possible in defence of Southern rights; but he is unwilling to place Maryland in the position of seeming to entertain treasonable designs against the Government and the Union.

— According to the latest returns received, the whole number of votes cast is 4,500,000; of which Abraham Lincoln received 1,800,000, Stephen A. Douglas 1,300,000, John C. Breckinridge 800,000, and John Bell, 600,000.

— At Louisville, Ky., on Monday night, the 26th ult., a mass meeting was held, composed of men of all parties, at which resolutions were adopted declaring that Kentucky does not despair of justice with the Union, and appealing to the South not to desert the common cause.

— The Governor of Virginia has issued his proclamation declaring that nine Bell and six Breckinridge electors were chosen at the recent election.

— Fifteen negroes and one white man are reported to have been hung for an attempt to create an insurrection in Burksville, Kentucky. The details have not reached the press.

— Outrages are continued in Kansas and in the border counties of Missouri by Montgomery's band of Abolitionists. Late accounts state that large numbers of families were leaving Bourbon and Linn counties in consequence of threats of violence. Much insecurity was also felt in Missouri, and large numbers of slaves have been sent to Clinton for security. The Sheriff of Bates county had been requested to raise a volunteer force to protect the border. Meetings are being held in all the border counties of Missouri to take measures of protection, and supply themselves with arms.

At the last accounts, Montgomery was encamped near Fort Scott, and defied the world to take him. It is thought that he will leave when he hears of the approach of Gen. Harney and Gen. Frost.

Montgomery's men are all through the country giving out reports to mislead the people. These frequent outrages in the West by Abolition bands, are kindling in that section a strong disunion spirit.

— Judge Douglas arrived in Washington on Saturday afternoon last. In the evening, a large number of his friends, headed by the Marine Band, proceeded to his residence to pay him the compliment of a serenade, and congratulate him on his safe return. They found him surrounded by his family, and a number of his intimate personal friends.—He never appeared in better health, though still suffering a little lameness from his fall at Montgomery, Alabama. It being generally known in the city that Judge Douglas was to be serenaded, an immense crowd was attracted anxious to hear his views on the distressing question of Secession. His speech was able and to the point, and we regret we cannot give it this week.

Living in the West.

The great majority of people who are living comfortably on farms in Pennsylvania, and those who are doing well in the towns and cities, have a very inadequate idea of living in the West. The change of habits and associations, though great, are, perhaps, the least important of any which meet the settler in those regions. The most important changes are those of climate, the mode of living, and the general features of the country. We speak of the new, and, as yet, thinly settled portions of the West, those regions where the land is not so well cultivated and as dear now, and the population as numerous, as in the older States.

There is an idea, says the Philadelphia Ledger, that little labor is required to cultivate prairie land, and, to persons from a wooded country, where much labor is at first required to clear the land, the prairies of the West have a very great charm, not only from their novelty, but from the fact that there are no trees to cut down, no stones to pick, and no stumps to encounter. These seeming advantages in speedy cultivation, however, very soon turn out to be real and most serious disadvantages, for everything else, save the land, that is necessary to complete a farm and render it a place of comfortable abode, is wanting, and only to be obtained, elsewhere, by hard labor and very considerable expense.

There are no running springs, always filled with wholesome water; but should there be water on the place, or within miles of it, unless it borders on some of the larger streams and rivers, it is found to be stagnant, or running slowly in a deep gulch, murky and unfit to drink. The want of timber is one of the grostest privations which can meet the farmer, being constantly needed for fuel, as well as for fencing, building and other purposes. No advantages of speedy cultivation can compensate for the absence of fire-wood alone.

The soil generally is exceedingly fertile, and capable, in favorable seasons, of producing large crops; but there are many drawbacks which the settlers meet with that are not known or considered, until proved by experience. Very great irregularity and uncercertainty prevail as to the growth and harvesting of the crops. Some seasons are too wet, and other seasons are too dry, and it is peculiar in the West that these seasons come in the greatest extremes. Then, again, hail storms and tornadoes frequently sweep over the prairies carrying destruction in their path. Experience has shown that, on an average, a full crop is not, from some cause or other, harvested more than about once in every three years. During the seasons of short crops very little more is raised than suffices for the wants of the farmer and his household, and in plenteous seasons the yield is generally so abundant in the country, that the price obtained is no remuneration for the labor.

To make a living in the West requires hard labor, and the enduring of many privations which are incident to a new and thinly settled country. The necessaries, not to speak of the comforts, of life are difficult to obtain; in many cases the distance of hauling with ox teams consumes much of the time, and forms a very great and wholly unproductive portion of the labor. Thousands of people have discovered that the same unremitting toil which has barely made them a living in the West, would have been far more profitable, and would, in all probability, have secured them a competency in the older States. There are large tracts of excellent farming land in Pennsylvania which can be bought as cheap as land in the West, and where the opportunities of making a comfortable living, and of realizing a competency, are much better and far more certain. With a healthy climate, and the advantages of plenty of timber, good water, regular seasons and harvests, convenient mills, stores and schools, and a ready, near and cash market for produce, it is folly to leave Pennsylvania to seek homes in the West.

A SINGULAR FACT.—A singular fact is related of two citizens of Southbridge, Mass., by the Webster Times, who have jointly owned and occupied a farm in that town for sixteen years, but have lately dissolved partnership. During the whole of this period no accounts of any kind have been kept by either of the parties. Both individuals were men of family, occupying different portions of the same house, and when either wished to use cash he went to the drawer in which it was kept and took it, no account being kept in a single instance. Yet in all these sixteen years, not a word of fault was spoken; no ill-feeling, jealousy or suspicion was shown, and perfect harmony subsisted between the parties to the day of their separation. The final dissolution in business was occasioned by the marriage of a member of one of the families, when it was thought the house might not be able to contain "the consequences;" so one party raised the value of one half the premises in cash, paid it over to the retiring partner, who quietly left. We believe this to be an unparalleled case of honesty and confidence.

☞ A New York boy superintends the manufacture of orange wood toothpicks in Chili, South America, which are whittled out by the children and the aged and decrepit, and he sends them to his mother in New York, who sells large numbers of them at twenty cents a thousand. The Astor House buys about eight or ten barrels at a time; and popular restaurants consume about a thousand per week.

☞ The Tyrone and Lock Haven Railroad was sold in Philadelphia on Wednesday last, for $51,000.

IMPORTANT TO TANNERS.—An important discovery in regard to the practical uses of Petroleum or Rock Oil, now found in quantities, has been made by Mr. John Lamb, a tanner of Allegheny township, Venango county, in this State. He says that during and since last August he has been using the oil of several wells in Venango county in his tannery, as a substitute for fish oil, and with most astonishing success. During last month he prepared one hundred sides of upper leather and eight dozen of calf skins with this oil. They have been exhibited to practical leather dealers from Pittsburg and from Boston, and a quantity sent to the Eastern markets with entire satisfaction to dealers. It makes a cleaner and smoother finish than the fish oil, fills up instead of opening the pores of the leather, so as to make it almost waterproof, and gives it the finish of the finest calf skin. It is also a superior article for mixing blackening, having the quality of cutting the lamp-black. The smell does not remain after the dressing process is completed upon the the leather. The oil is also used in the crude state, costing one-third the price of fish oil.

As this oil is now used also by the painters in their business instead of linseed oil, the demand is likely in any event to be ample.

AN INCIDENT OF LIFE IN THE GOLD REGION.—Among the deep defiles of the Rocky Mountains, lately, a small company of men stood around the new made grave of a dead companion. With heads uncovered they listened attentively to the words of the preacher as he offered up a prayer. While in the midst of it, one of the company discovered "the color" in the earth at his feet thrown up to make room for the remains of the deceased. In a loud whisper he communicated the rather exciting intelligence to his companion. All heard it, even the clergyman, who, suspending his prayer, opened his eyes to see the auditory scatter in every direction to stake off gold claims. Calling in a loud voice to stake him off a "claim," he reclosed his eyes, hastily concluded his prayer and started off on a run to join his fellows in securing a claim.

Support Your Home Paper.

[From Clark's School Visitor for November.]

The world is flooded with papers—all sorts of papers—secular papers, religious papers; papers for the farmer, the mechanic, the teacher, the child; daily, weekly, monthly papers; papers pictorial and papers congressional; funny papers and stupid papers; Tribunes, Posts, Forums—Messengers, Advocates, Heralds—Banners, Flags, Trumpets—Day-books, Journals, Ledgers—Worlds, Suns, Stars—Dispatches, Expresses, Couriers—Chronicles, Examiners, Reporters, and a thousand other famous papers, all of which are scattered broadcast throughout the land; but one of the best papers for a family of young persons, and the one deserving the first and promptest patronage from the head of the household, is the indispensable local or county paper—the home paper.

We would earnestly recommend farmers and mechanics, teachers, lawyers, doctors, preachers, by all means, to encourage first your own paper, published in your county-town and containing all the local news of your neighborhood. It is a grand mistake for persons in the country or at remote distances from the great cities, to send their money hundreds of miles away in exchange either for a stale daily, or a weekly made up of dead dailies, and expect thus to find profitable and entertaining reading for a family.

Be neighborly. Subscribe and pay your dollar or two, as the price may be, for your home paper. If it happen to be a little dull at times, breathe, new life into it by writing something lively for its columns, or sending a few new subscribers and as many dollars to the editor. Sure cure for dullness! encourage home enterprise and home industry. Encourage home talent by teaching your children to contribute articles, short, pointed, useful, suggestive, to the juvenile department of the home paper.

Friends, think of this, and resolve to assist your neighbor, the publisher of the paper established and continued to promote your interests and your happiness. Give your nearest paper a hearty welcome these winter evenings; and should you have an extra quarter or half dollar left for reading money, give it to Johnnie or Mary, and let it be expended in securing the regular visits of some live youth's paper. Such investments will pay a thousand fold.

Railroad Disaster.

Passenger Car Precipitated into the Lehigh River—The Conductor and Four Lady Passengers Drowned—Miraculous Escape of other Passengers.

MAUCH CHUNK, Nov. 29.

The Beaver Meadow passenger train, which left here at 11.15 this morning, was thrown from the track at Bear creek dam, by the breaking of a rail, and the passenger car, containing some twenty-eight persons, was precipitated into the Lehigh river, a distance of about fifteen feet.

Four of the passengers and the conductor were drowned.

The announcement of the catastrophe caused an intense excitement among the residents of this town, it being thought impossible that any could have escaped. It was certainly a miracle that so many were enabled to extricate themselves from the submerged car.

The following is a list of the passengers drowned:

Mrs. Farrow and sister, of Beaver Meadow.
The two Misses Smith, of Mauch Chunk.
Robert Nichols, the conductor.

Some ten or dozen of the passengers were saved only through the utmost exertions of the hands on the train, who mounted the car and broke away a portion of the roof before it sunk entirely.

Mr. John Craig, one of the passengers, broke through the window, and escaped that way.

The car sunk in twenty feet of water.

The bodies of all the victims of the disaster have been recovered.

OFFICIAL VOTE OF KENTUCKY.—LOUISVILLE, Nov. 24.—The following is the official vote of the State:

Bell and Everett, 66,016; Breckinridge, 52,836; Douglas, 25,644; Lincoln, 1,366.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3d, 1860.

The Senate convened at 12 M., a quorum of Senators being present.

The House met at the same hour.

It being announced that the President would not submit his message until to-morrow, the Senate and House adjourned after being in session about an hour and a half.

Among the various propositions, with a view of quieting the present political evils is one proposing that the representatives of all the southern States—South Carolina excepted—have a Conference and prepare a list of their grievances, and what will satisfy them, as a remedy. This is to be submitted to the conservative Republicans, and if it meets with sufficient favor from them, then after the reading of the President's message, that part in reference to the political troubles be referred to a committee of one from each State.—This proposition is discussed to-day. It is said that several prominent Republicans have already acquiesced in it.

Special Despatches to "The Press."

RESIGNATION OF SECRETARY COBB.

The resignation of Secretary Cobb, which I have frequently predicted, is definitely expected on Wednesday. Speculation is rife as to who will be his successor. It will be a conservative man from the South.

MILITARY PREPARATIONS.

Great quantities of arms have been ordered in the North by parties in the South. In many of the States the authorities are placing all the important points on a war footing.—In all of the armories there is work enough for a year. So great is the demand beyond the capacity of labor, that Southern agents report it impossible to have all their orders filled.

CABINET SPECULATIONS.

A gentleman lately arrived from Springfield, Illinois, states that there is a strong feeling there in favor of Mr. Lincoln's offering the State Department to John Bell, of Tennessee.

THE REVENUE AND THE TARIFF.

It is confidently stated on the authority of Hon. John Sherman, the Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means in the House, that the first business will be to put the Morrill tariff bill, which passed the House last session, and is now in the Senate, on its passage in the latter body. No loan will be effective without some such basis as this.—When we issue treasury notes we must have a revenue to redeem them.

THE SOUTH CAROLINA MEMBERS.

The members from South Carolina, in both branches, who may take their seats, will retire as soon as South Carolina secedes, which is expected to take place before Christmas. Their withdrawal may give the Senate to the Opposition, especially if they are followed by the Senators and Representatives from several other States.

WILL THERE BE COERCION?

All moderate men deprecate force against the seceders; but the recent declaration of Mr. Memminger, of South Carolina, that Fort Moultrie must be yielded by the United States to the Disunionists, may compel a different policy.

THE UNION FEELING AT WASHINGTON.

On Thanksgiving Day the sermons were all filled with earnest Union sentiments, and were listened to by great crowds. At the Church of the Ephiphany the Star Spangled Banner was played by the grand organ and sung by the choir with much effect.

ANXIETY TO HEAR FROM EUROPE.

Much solicitude is felt as to the next advices from Europe by Capitalists and politicians. If the drafts of our merchants are thrown out, and holders of American securities should take the alarm, and propose to sell at a sacrifice, there will be a double calamity. We shall get very little specie, and be compelled to pay out large amounts to foreign bondholders.

The Present Century and the Next.

Whilst the minute details of the recent Presidential election are not yet accurately ascertained, yet the general result was known throughout the United States the day after the election took place. If science and improvement continue to progress at this rate, it will not be long before results will be known before they happen. To steam and the telegraph we are indebted for the present facilities for transmitting the news. The next discovery, for we cannot suppose that invention is at an end, may yet arm man with a power hitherto and now deemed unattainable—a power in conflict with all our present ideas of his capacity. Should the remaining forty years of the nineteenth century be marked by the same degree of progress and discovery that has characterized the last forty years of it, then indeed will the twentieth century be the opening of an era that may, in some respects realize our conceptions of the millenium. Should improvement in human character keep pace with improvement in human knowledge, those whose destiny it shall be to live at that period will be happy indeed! It is curious to think of the miraculous development that they will manifest.—The learning of the past will be crowned by the now undreamed of wonders that will be added to it by the forty remaining years of this century, in which lie buried so many events.

A dwarf on a giant's back can see further than the giant, but when the men of the twentieth century shall be mounted on the successive shoulders of the men of all the antecedent centuries, what wonderful things may we not expect them to see! It will be a privilege, indeed, to live in that period.—Pennsylvanian.

ABOUT A SNAKE.—About two years ago, a man named Milton J. Gerhardt, of Sterling, Wayne Co., Pa., was taken with an internal bodily ailment, the symtoms of which consisted of an unpleasant feeling in the right side and a beating and thumping through the entire system, when in a reclining posture. The pain increased in intensity with the run of time, and caused the sufferer to apply every avaiable remedy for relief. He consulted many physicians, in different parts of the country, but nearly all disagreed as to the nature of the disease. He also came to this place and consulted Drs. Martin and Romig, who expressed an opinion that he was affected with Liver Complaint. He kept on taking medicine, and latterly took hemlock gum in liquor. While employing this remedial agent he became possessed of a strong thirst for milk, and accordingly partook of a large quantity, which caused him to feel a choking and crawling sensation in his stomach and throat. Straining his breath outward and reaching his fingers into his throat he pulled out a LIVE SNAKE, ten inches long! He is now entirely rid of his former sufferings.—Berks Journal.

CORRESPONDENCE OF THE GLOBE.

WARREN CO., ILL., Nov. 27, 1860.

DEAR GLOBE:—I again take up my pen to inform you that we are still going on, though Lincoln is President elect and Douglas is not. What consoles me, however, is to think that we did our duty, and it cannot be helped.—Buchanan and the Fire-eaters of the South did more to force Lincoln to the position he is to occupy than ever the Wide-Awakes or what nots of his own party did. However, the Democrats have a majority in both branches of Congress, so Lincoln will have considerable of a safe-guard.

Gallant W. A. Richardson formerly Governor of Nebraska and candidate for Governor of Illinois in 1856, has about 2250 majorty in the 5th Congressional district.

The weather has been extremely cold with snow, since Thursday the 22d, and corn gathering is tied up. The thermometer has been down to Zero two mornings, and one whole day was no higher than 8° above Zero; to-day is milder, though still cold, and there is about three inches of snow in the fields. I have about 100 bushels of corn out yet. Corn only brings from 12 to 17 cents per bushel, and costs at least one third of that to take it the 12 or 14 miles we live from market. I doubt it will not be more than 20 cents till towards spring. The general average of corn per acre this year is about 65 bushels, some makes 80 and but little makes less than 50.—Wheat is now 65 cents since the river is likely to freeze up; it was 75 last week. Potatoes are about ten cents per bushel and dull sale. Prairie chickens are having a bad time of it since the snow, one man shot three doz. yesterday—they are worth about $2,00 per dozen in Monmouth. I know two hunters who killed over 60 dozens in about six weeks last winter—they expect to do a much heavier business in the chicken line the present winter.

Day after to-morrow is our Thanksgiving day, the same as in Penna. Nothing more. I hope to visit Huntingdon before spring.

Accident on the Pennsylvania Central Railroad.

The express train which left Pittsburg at 3.05 on Thursday morning ran into the rear of a freight train which was standing on the track at the Blairsville intersection, fifty-four miles from Pittsburg. The collision took place at a few minutes before six o'clock, and resulted in the maiming of the conductor and fireman, and in the complete demolition of six freight cars, with their contents. Two of the three passenger cars were also considerably broken.

It seems that, owing to the slippery condition of the rails, the engine of the freight train was unable to draw its load, and had come to a stand-still just on a curve. A flagman had been sent back the usual distance, six hundred yards, to stop the Express, and his signal was seen. The Express engine was instantly reversed, and the brakes whistled down, with but little effect, however, in checking the speed of the train. Besides the ice on the rails, there is a heavy down grade at this point, and all the wheels slid without perceptibly diminishing the speed. When the collision took place, the Express train was moving about twenty miles an hour.—The engineer kept his place on the engine and was uninjured.

The fireman jumped, and struck upon his face. His face and head are badly cut, and the gash, under his eye, is a serious injury. The conductor Harry Dunbar, of Newport, Perry county, was at one of the brakes, and was forced into the door, while one leg was caught between the platforms of the two cars, and his ankle badly crushed by a projecting bolt. The passengers worked nearly an hour with a saw and an axe, before he could be released from his painful position. He suffered greatly during this time, but fortunately the limb was not broken.

The ends of two passenger cars were crushed in, and the passengers thrown violently from their seats, but, with the exception of a few bruises, none of them were injured. They came on in the mail train three hours later.

Two freight cars were entirely broken up, the engine going completely through them. Two others were overturned, and lay with the wheels in the air. They were loaded with flour, which was scattered over everything, making the vicinity look as if a heavy snow had recently fallen. The machinery of the engine is much broken, and it is extremely fortunate that so little injury of limb and no loss of life took place.

The Needle Women of London.

A correspondent of the London Times, describing one of the great mantua-making establishments in that city, communicates the following facts:

"Work commences every morning at 7 o'clock and continues till 11 at night—a period of 16 hours, the only intervals allowed being about 10 minutes for each meal—the total amount of time allowed for—eating their food, I was going to say, but surely "bolting" is the more appropriate phrase—being 40 minutes a day; thus leaving 15 hours and 20 minutes as the period devoted to work.—And this, be it remembered, is not merely during the busy season, but for all the year round, from January to December. The only day of leisure which the girls of this establishment have is Sunday. From Monday morning to Saturday night they are as complete prisoners as any in Newgate. They know not whether the sun shines or the rain fallsat that time. They are not allowed to cross the threshold even to purchase a pair of shoes or a new gown for themselves, and must employ their friends outside to do this for them.

Nor is the accommodation in-doors such as in any way to reconcile them to this close confinement. The work-room, in which ten or twelve of them are employed, is only about twelve feet square, and is entirely devoid of arrangements for ventilation, which is the more to be deplored, as during the evening they have to encounter the heat and foul air of three flaming gas-burners right over their heads, every door and window being shut by which a breath of pure air could possibly enter. The bed-rooms are equally uncomcomfortable, no fewer than six persons being huddled into one, and four into another."

It is impossible to contemplate the condition of this class of work-women (as disclosed by the facts quoted) without keenly sympathizing with it, and wishing that something might be done to mitigate its evils and misery.

HUNG FOR THE NINETEENTH TIME.—A Western Missouri contemporary tells the following:

"On Tuesday last, news come to this city that a man was seen hanging between Independence and Maxwell's Landing. The Coroner was promptly notified of the fact, and he, in discharge of his duty, as promptly repaired to the scene; but to his surprise found the man alive kicking and walking about as other men do, with no rope around his neck—where the rope ought to be. He the made some inquiries about the victim, and the old woman—that is Mrs. Ellicott, the wife of the hung man replied "that he was cut down, but not dead;" and further remarked, "that it was about the 19th time that he had attempted to hang himself and hadn't yet succeeded, but she'd be tetotally darned if he mightn't hang the next time until he died; that she would never cut the cord again to let him breathe easy." We understand that Ellicott is in the habit of hanging himself every time he has a family jar, and although he has made so many attempts has never yet got without sight of the house, where his wife would never fail to cut him down before his wind shortened.

TERRIFIC SCENE.—A Thousand Animals Burnt Alive.—We announced Saturday the burning of the Pacific at Uniontown, Kentucky, one of the finest steamers on the western waters. She had a very large quantity of live stock on board, and the burning of these poor creatures must have been a sicken-sight. One account says Mr. Robert Ford, a passenger, cut the halter of one of his fine horses, which swam ashore. A large bullock also swam out, but died as soon as it reached the shore. The scene of the burning boat and its thousand head of live stock, all tied to the stake, a prey to the devouring flames, was fearful and horrible in the extreme.—There were seven hundred and fifty sheep, and one hundred and thirty head of fat cattle, mules and horses, all burnt alive, with no chance of escape. In addition to the live stock there was upwards of three hundred tons of pork, bacon and flour on board, which, together with the destruction of the splendid steamer, involved a loss of nearly $100,000.

A NICE POINT IN LAW.—Some weeks ago a man named Cathcart was tried and convicted in the Clearfield Court for the murder of his wife, and sentenced to be hung. On Tuesday, H. Bucher Swope, Esq., one of Cathcart's attorney's, arrived in this city, and obtained from Gen. Miller, Prothonotary, a writ to take the case to the Supteme Court, where it is Mr. Swope's intention to test the right of a Governor to sign and issue a death warrant. The courts below will probably wait with anxiety to see what arguments will be introduced, and their merits for ingenuity. If Mr. Swope convinces the Supreme Court that the Governor has no right to issue the little document which sends men to the other side of Jordan, he will have achieved a much greater name and reputation than any man now in the legal profession.—Harrisburg Patriot and Union.

FIFTY NEEDLES EXTRACTED FROM THE BREAST OF A WOMAN.—One of the most surprising operations that has yet come to the ears of the scientific world was accomplished in this city a few days since. It was no less a startling feat in the line of surgery than the extracting of fifty needles, in a good state of preservation, from the breast of a woman, and that too without the aid of chloroform. And what is, perhaps still more wonderful, the operation was actually performed by the woman herself, unassisted by a physician, and who is now, we learn, gaining strength and liable to recover without suffering any very serious effect from it.—Milwaukee News.

THE LETTER BUSINESS.—We happened to be in the Post Office the other evening at the opening of the Mail, and about one-third of the entire number of letters in the bag were for Col. Curtin. We think there must have been fully thirty—pretty good for one mail. Go into the Col's office almost when you will, and you will find him, coat off, busy answering letters.

We are informed he will have about five hundred applicants for every office in his gift. We are under the impression somebody will get disappointed.—Centre Democrat.

SINGULAR CASE.—James Noland, of St. Louis, lost his eyesight a few days ago under somewhat singular circumstances. He felt nothing peculiar about his eyes on retiring for the night, but on awakening the next morning he found that one of his eyes had actually collapsed, and protruded from the sockets so that he could not close his eyelids. Two or three nights afterwards a similar occurrence happened to his remaining eye, and he was thus made perfectly blind. He was a drayman, and the physicians state that the loss of his eyesight was caused by over exertion and straining of the nervous system.

TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY PERSONS HANGED IN TEXAS.—The Mobile Mercury says:

"We saw a gentleman yesterday, direct from Texas. He came from the region of country where the hanging process was rife some time back. He says the distant public is not informed of the extent of the hanging. He is a member of a Vigilance Committee, which has been in correspondence with the Committees of other counties, and estimates that no less than two hundred and fifty persons have suffered death at a rope's end."

Light be the turf of thy tomb;
May its verdure like emeralds be:
There should not be the shadow of gloom
In aught that reminds us of thee.
Young flowers and an evergreen tree
May spring from the spot of thy rest:
Neither cypress nor yew let us see;
For why should we mourn for the blest?

THE HUNTINGDON GLOBE, A DEMOCRATIC FAMILY JOURNAL, DEVOTED TO LOCAL AND GENERAL NEWS, &C.

THE GLOBE.

Huntingdon, Wednesday, Dec. 5, 1860.

LOCAL & PERSONAL.

GET THE BEST DETECTOR.—The Philadelphia Ledger speaks as follows of Petersons' Counterfeit Detector: Petersons' Counterfeit Detector and Bank Note List for December has been received by us, and is corrected by Drexel & Co., the well-known Bankers and Brokers, and it is the best and most reliable Detector of Counterfeits and Altered Notes published in this country. The number issued this day fully describes Fifty new Counterfeits, and contains full descriptions of all bogus bank notes that are being altered to suit various banks all over the country, and which are being daily put into extensive circulation. It also contains several other pages of very valuable information of everything pertaining to bank notes. It has been considerably enlarged, having now forty-eight pages in, and contains fac-similes of three bogus bank plates and the coat of arms of all the United States. We have no hesitation in pronouncing it the most complete, reliable and best publication of the kind in the United States, as it is not used to subserve the interest of any banking-house, as most of the so-called Detectors are. It should be in the hands of every storekeeper in the whole country; and we would advise all persons who handle paper money to send One Dollar in a letter, for a years subscription, to the publishers, and thus subscribe for the monthly issue of it at once; or Two Dollars for the semi-monthly issue. It is published by T. B. Peterson & Brothers, No. 306 Chestnut street, Philada., to whom all letters should be addressed.

PAYING DEBTS.—Few people seem to realize the dishonesty of not paying their debts. It has become a habit with many to defer liquidating their liabilities to the longest possible moment. The most trivial excuses, and in many instances downright falsehoods, are resorted to, to put off a creditor. Men with money in their pockets will declare, with faces as long as the moral law, that they are entirely unable to meet the demand made upon them, in fact, according to their story, they have not a cent in the world; but they are extremely sorry, and, at some other time, they hope to be able to pay what they owe. Others will spend their money lavishly in gratifying their appetites and fancies, and let their creditors whistle for their dues. Now, we submit to any candid man whether such conduct is any less dishonest than it would be to put your hand into another's pocket and steal his purse. On the contrary it seems to us to be meaner. Men obtain credit through the confidence the creditor may have in them. When they refuse to pay, they abuse this confidence, and persist in holding on to what does not belong to them. The common thief takes and keeps. The man who makes a business of getting trust and never paying, gets and keeps. The only difference between them is, one takes and the other gets, and that, we think, is distinction without much of a difference.

☞ The pork season is upon us! The shrill screams of the dying porkers have taken the place of the "morning call" of chanticleer, and sausages, per consequence, constitute the "bill of fare" of almost every household. Hog killing is a general and an important business at this season of the year, and is beyond all comparison the most disagreeable duty that devolves on the housewife. But use conquers disgust, and that fact with proper preparation for, and systematic arrangement of the work while in progress, makes hog killing an endurable business.—Indeed, in large families, we think hog killing desirable and certainly economical, as many portions of the animal which are considered the prequisites of the slaughter-house, come in an excellent place at home. It is a pleasure, beside your own well cured bacon, to have a supply of sausages and lard that you can use without any disagreeable doubts of their cleanliness.

A NOVEL WEDDING.—On Wednesday last, says the Tyrone Star, Wm. Burley, Esq., of that city, riveted a couple in the holy bonds of matrimony, under singular circumstances. He received word that they would be on the accommodation train, going west, with the request that he would meet them at the station. Upon the arrival of the train, the worthy Justice entered the car in which the happy couple were, and to the the utter astonishment of the passengers, immediately proceeded with the marriage ceremony. The good-natured and accommodating conductor, Capt. Cremer, kindly waited until the last word was spoken, and then with an "all right—go ahead," and a snort from the fiery horse, started the newly married pair on their journey through life.

PRESERVES.—The paper which is usually pasted over jars of preserves, is porous and admits air. To render it perfect impervious, and as tight as a drum, apply the white of an egg with a brush to the paper before covering the jar, overlapping the edges an inch or two.

DIPTHERIA.—This dreaded and fatal disease has made its appearance in some sections of Blair county. It also prevails to a considerable extent in Clearfield county, where a number of deaths have occured.

A STRIKING NOTICE FOR THE LADIES—D. P. Gwin has just received a box of new De Laines. *

☞ It is often a question among people unacquainted with physiology, whether lying with the head raised or level with the body is the most wholesome. Physicians declare the latter to be the best, and say that as the vessel through which the blood passes from the heart to the head are always lessened in their cavities when the head is resting in bed higher than the body, the head ought to be nearly on a level with the trunk, and people should accustom themselves to sleep thus, in order to avoid the danger resulting from the opposite habit. The relative position of the head and trunk, when the former is bolstered up in bed, is the same as that produced by stooping the head forward when the body is erect.

WHAT OYSTERS!—On Saturday evening we received another dozen of Mammoth Oysters from the Mt. Vernon Saloon. The suspension of payments generally did not trouble us when, with fork in hand, we made an attack on the "magnificent" shell fish. Gentlemen and ladies wishing a plate of good Oysters will find comfortable accommodations at Kennedy King's Mt. Vernon Saloon.

THANKSGIVING DAY.—The day was appropriately observed in the 'ancient borough' by the people generally. A number of turkeys and "sich like" disappeared from the tables of the fortunate, while others were thankful for smaller favors in shape of Oysters and 'fixins,' roast beef and pork, boiled cabbage and potatoes etc., etc.

☞ We notice that Mr. Charles Miller is about making considerable improvements at his tannery in this place. He is putting up a steam engine for the purpose of griuding bark, and saving hand labor in the tanning and finishing of hides and skins.

THANKFUL.—Our fair friend Miss —away will please accept the thanks of Ex-D., for a piece of turkey; may her benevolent bump grow more prominent before another chance is offered.

☞ The Wide-Awakes—what is to become of them, now that the election is over? Those handsome young men with red caps and tin lanterns at the end of a stick, ought to be provided for somehow.

☞ In accordance with a recent order of the Postoffice Department, all unpaid letters are sent to the dead letter office. Letter writers will govern themselves accordingly.

☞ We learn that Abram Westboook, of Mill Creek, will move into the public house lately occupied by C. Couts. He takes possession this week.

SOMETHING NEW AND GOOD.—Just received at Lewis' Book Store, a new article of writing fluid. It costs but a trifle more and is much superior to any writing inks.

☞ We take pleasure in calling attention to the advertisement of R. Newell's Gallery of Art. The testimonials are of the first character. *

☞ The time table of the Penna. R. R., as published in our last was not correct. It is now correct.

☞ The "Huntingdon House" has lately been purchased by Nicholas C. Decker of this place.

☞ School Books and Stationery, wholesale and retail, at Lewis' Book Store.

LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CONTINENTAL HOTEL,
CASSVILLE, Dec. 1, 1860.

DEAR GLOBE:—

Gov. Packer's Sunday was not very generally observed here. However, those who desired, had an opportunity of listening to an excellent sermon, by Rev. J. A. Coleman. A real Thanksgiving sermon, learned, eloquent and logical. His text was, "O, give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good: for his mercy endureth forever."—107th Psalm, 1st verse.

The wife of Conrad Curfman was buried in the cemetery of this place on Tuesday.—Aged 71 years, 1 month and 14 days. She was a momber of the M. E. Church, fifty-eight years. Rev. J. A. Coleman preached a solemn and impressive sermon on the occasion.

We are having all kinds of weather—wet, dry, warm and cold, alternately. I could give you a long and elaborate essay on the weather, but forbear.

We had a regular built Quarter Sessions in our midst on Saturday last. Judges, lawyers, a jury, and any amount of witnesses.—The "wildest excitement" prevailed throughout the Sessions.

The butchering season has already commenced in these regions. Pork and beef will be plenty.

No other news of any importance.

Yours, EX-REPORTER.

COMMENDATIONS:

From Hon. Lewis D. Campbell, M. C., Ohio.

My family and friends all concur in the opinion that the (Newell) picture is more life-like than any thing they ever saw. My likeness has been repeatedly taken by different Artists in various ways, but I have never yet had one which presents so true to nature, all the features and expressions of countenance as this.

From Hon. E. Joy Morris, late Minister to Italy,

The exquisite finish, beauty and softness of your portraits, conjoined with their durability of color and faithfulness as likenesses, cannot fail to commend them to the attention and patronage of all who appreciate true art.

From Col. James Page.

Having occasion for a portrait, I procured one from Mr. Robert Newell, of the city of Philadelphia, a miniature in Oil Colors, under the new process discovered by him, and take great pleasure in expressing the satisfaction given me, not only by the accuracy of the likeness, but its artistic finish in all respects, and recommends him to the patronage of those disposed to encourage the beautiful art.

For the Farmer.

[From the Country Gentleman.]

THE FORM OF THE HORSE.

Head moderately long and free from flesh, with nostrils large and wide; lips thin and close; eyes large, full, and clear; ears small and pointed, and when the horse is in motion, kept playing, denoting that he is feeling well he takes pleasure in noticing. By the ear we can tell what his thoughts are, whether vicious, playful, or frightened. The ear to the horse, as the tail to the dog, is an index to their thoughts.

The neck rather long than otherwise, and of sufficient strength to support the head, which, if not, the horse is very apt to be a stumbler. Let it be well joined to the head and shoulder. Windpipe large, and not too closely confined to the neck so as to prevent free circulation of air.

The shoulder slanting, so as to relieve the horse of the jar of his weight, this jar causing corns, splinters, &c. The slanting shoulder facilitates speed; for example, the comparison between an iron and rubber ball; if you let fall the iron ball it rebounds but little, while the rubber ball continues to rebound; thus the slanting shoulder rebounds from the ground, while the straight shoulder tries to combat with the weight. For the draught horse the straight shoulder is better, as it enables him to throw his weight into the collar, thereby pulling the load forward, while the slanting shoulder pulls, not only forward, but also upwards, which, as he is not strong enough to lift the weight by his shoulder, he works as a draught horse, to a great disadvantage.

The back short and straight for strength, but long underneath, to admit of long stride. Ribs round, not slab-sided, with plenty of room betwen the last rib and hip bone. I know this is contrary to the opinion generally expressed by writers, of having their horses well-ribbed home, as denoting endurance. If by endurance they mean "fat," they are right; but if they mean to do a certain number of miles in quick time without distress, they are wrong. Flora and Patchen are not ribbed home, neither are any of our first-class horses. To be ribbed home prevents a long stride, without which a horse cannot be fast. I do not wish the rib to sink in, but still I wish it to be afraid of the hip-bone. Broad across the loins and long haunch. Great reliance is placed by some in the feeling of the tail; if it gives readily to the touch, he is considered of good disposition; if not, of bad. I have seen horses of "easy" tails, of most uneasy disposition. The tail has four cords—two underneath to lower it, and two above to raise it, so by cutting the lower cords the horse has but little power to keep his tail down, the upper keeping it elevated to an angle of 45 degrees. The nicking, if done well, gives him an "easy" tail—if not, otherwise.

Have the chest deep in front and behind the fore-arms, giving the lungs and heart plenty of room to play in. Not too broad in front, as it makes him straddle, and prevents a long quick step. The leg long in the fore-arm, as the muscles lie there, and let them be large and hard; but below that the shorter the better, as the cannon bone consists of cords, and the shorter the cord the stronger. Cannon bone flat. The leg straight in front, to prevent it turning inwardly and cutting the other leg, and also from turning outwardly and paddling. Let him stand straight upon them; if too far under, it receives too much of the weight, making him "knee-sprung," and also confines the action of the leg, so that he cannot throw it well out in front, and if too far in front, it also confines the action and does not reach, when striding, far enough back to receive the weight and carry it forward. Pastern long, bending to relieve the weight, and broad. Hoof high, open heel, prominent frog, full bars, and concave sole. The hind leg, long from the hip to the hock, and well bent, on account of muscular power. Hocks large and strong; bow-hocked denotes weakness, although pacers generally are built so; it also prevents the legs moving in a straight line.

Have the leg straight; if not, the work comes mostly on one side of the cords, and it also wears upon one side of the foot. I think one great reason of our hores being so deformed in their legs, is that when colts, their feet are left to "luck," and if they wear down one side it tends gradually to make the leg bend that way, and instead of seeing a straight hoof around the cornet, we find it higher one side than the other, never to be cured.

See that he does not interfere behind, and if for speed, have him throw his front legs well out, and his hind legs well under him; also have the hind legs open wide enough to clear the front feet, and step over from three to five feet. If he does this, and "gathers" quick, he will make not only a fast one, but a good road horse, which is more to be desired.

The above description will apply to a draught horse, except he must be coarser built, with straight shoulder, straight pasterns, as he does not stand in need of being relieved of the jar, as he hardly ever is off of a walk. It matters little now he moves his limbs, provided he does not cut himself, and walks brisk.
